NSW TRAVEL BACK ON THE ITINERARY – GET VACCINATED NOW!

Would-be holiday makers are being warned to vaccinate now if they want to enjoy a trip to regional NSW or stay-cation in the city when 70% double dose vaccination levels are reached in NSW.

Tourism Accommodation Australia has welcomed today's announcement that travel within NSW will be back on the cards after the long-awaited 70% figure is reached – hopefully by mid-October.

“This is good news for our industry overall, including accommodation operators, staff, and the wider community, said TAA National CEO Michael Johnson.

“Having been closed for so long we certainly welcome this announcement from government.

“Having time to prepare is also important as we expect an influx of regional travel once the 70% benchmark is reached given people have been cooped up for such a long time.

“That said, our industry will still require support going forward, CBD operators in particular, as we wait on the next round of freedoms such as international travel, large scale events, and mid-week corporate markets to return.

“Overall, the message is simple. Get vaccinated.

“You'll need two shots to enjoy the freedoms ahead and we look forward to inviting you back into our accommodation venues.”
